food for reflection, occurs in the Courier: Anybody to Beat Breckinridge.—On the 30th of July last, Col. W. A. Richardson, of Illinois, the warm friend and confidant of Mr. Douglas, his representative in the Cincinnati Convention, as he was in the Charleston and Baltimore Conventions, wrote to Capt. Brooks, of Quincy, Illinois, saying: "Both Lincoln and Breckinridge advocate measures hostile to those I favor, AND BETWEEN THEM (Lincoln and Breckinridge) I AM INDIFFERENT."
When Mr. Douglas was remonstrated with by a friend for his opposition to the proposition to fuse in New Jersey with the friends of the three candidates, in opposition to Lincoln, and told that his course would give the State to the latter, he relied: "Then Let IT, and we will have the organization in 1864."

Taking the cue from these leaders, the Douglas electors and speakers are beginning impudently to proclaim upon the stump their preference for Bell, who in Know-Nothing times indorsed the persecution and day, last says: proscription of a numerous and respectable class of citizens, and objected not to see the sidewalks of our cities sprinkled with made upon him a war of beastly ruffianism. their blood. WM. B. ALLEN, Esq.: Having examined the manuscript of your "Hand-Book" for Lawyers. County Judges, Justices of the Peace, Sheriffs, Coroners, &c.. I can cordially recommend its publication, believing it to be the very best of that class of books that has come within my observation.

It contains in a compact form more useful, reliable and indispensable information and instruction for the various officers of the Commonwealth and the private citizen upon legal rights, remedies, duties, and the modes and forms of legal proceedings in the inferior courts, &c., that has ever been condensed within the same limits. It is accurately adapted to our new system of laws and proceedings. It should be in the hands of all the various officers of the Commonwealth.

Respectfully,

Land for Sale.

WE have two tracts of Land in Franklin county, which we will sell. One tract, containing 169 acres, lies about 6 miles from Frankfort, on the road from Frankfort to Flat Creek, between said road and Stony Creek. The other tract, containing 131 acres, lies 4 or 4½ miles from Frankfort, one mile and a half from the Railroad, between Benson and Stony Creeks. Both of these tracts are well wooded and timbered, and the latter sufficiently near to haul the wood to Frankfort. If it is desired, the latter tract will be divided.

There were several stands from which speeches were made by local politicians, but the chief interest was centered in Mr. Seward. He declared that he had not a feeling of prejudice against any man for any difference of religious or political opinions. He had not a word to say against the conduct of any politician. He wanted to speak only of principles. The great work of humanity on this continent was the organization of a nation. Within the last two years they had incorporated two new States, and within the next There were several stands from which speeches to Douglas in this State: incorporated two new States, and within the next ten years they would incorporate four more. It was practically of no importance to any one of all those who heard him whether slavery was voted up or voted down; but to their posterity it was of much consequence, as the attainment of independence was. They were all ambitious, however, that the nation which they would leave to their posterity should be as great, as glorious, as ever the sun shone upon—a nation in which every man should live safely. There could be no actual free Republicanism in the world when all as ever the sun shone upon—a nation in which every man should live safely. There could be no actual free Republicanism in the world when all the members of society were not free. He showed the necessity of an emigration of free men in building up a nation, and asked what would be the result if such emigration were prevented. Foreign nations would send their convicts here as they had formerly done. What kind of labor would they have then—such labor as their ancestors had in South Carolina and Georgia? They would have African laborers, brought here by Boston and New York merchants. They had got this free emigration, because in 1787 their fathers declared that neither slavery nor involuntary servitude should ever exist in the Territory of Michigan. Was there a man now in this State who would wish to have a slave here? (Cries of "No, no.") Slavery and freedom cannot exist in the same State; they are incompatible; there is an "irrepressible conflict" between them—(Laughter.) Introduce slavery, and you expel freedom; introduce freedom, and slavery will sooner or later die. It has been always my policy to take care that every new State should be a free State, and I will favor as long as I can, with the limits of constitutional action, the decrease and diminution of African slavery in all the States. (Applause.) That is the whole question. If I am wrong, then I am egregiously wrong, and you may abandon me and my alternatives. If I am wrong in pronouncing slavery in expedient, you will of course accept it.

When did you ever read or see of a State peopled exclusively by freeweng that was in any introduced that Mr. Douglas and cortege very where with these manifestations due those more honest and patriouc. Arriving at the hotel he was served with that "collation" that has best befit his journeyings for months past. After a rest of an hour he was a large crowd assembled at Preston's woods, reached the point of his gain proceeding up Sixth street and out Broadway to Preston's woods, reached the point of his constitution an dom within her limits, and Tennessee subjects to the stake and fagot the slave who aspires to freedom. Not from feelings of cruelty, but from alarm for the safety of the State; and what do we hear from Texas now, but that that new State still newer than Michigan, but having, as she thought, tenfold the elements of wealth and strength, and prosperity, its convulsed with panic hoceuse of slavery being brought into debate rights of the State. If he can stand it, however, strength, and prosperity, its convulsed with panic because of slavery being brought into debate among a portion of her citizens. But you will ask me, what have you to do with this? Why not adopt the Opposition policy of non-intervention, and let those who like slavery have it, and those who like freedom have freedom? I will answer you very simply. You maintain now a standing army of about fifteen thousand men, and a standing navy which is very large, though not very efficient. Can any man tell me what we maintain them for? Do we maintain them to keep peace in the State of Michigan, or New who is stand by the Constitution and the reserved rights of the State. If he can stand it, however, the country can.

Kentuckians know too well the position of their leader to be misled by such subterfuge. The meeting in Preston's woods was largely attended. Through curiosity men and women of all parties attended. A man like Douglas, who has made himself so notorious, is of course an object of public gaze. For this reason thousands were drawn together at Preston's woods. They assembled to see the most notorious man in America. Probably had he been a highwayman they would to keep peace in the State of Michigan, or New York, or Massachusetts? Do we maintain an army and navy to keep out civil war amongst ourselves in the free States? Not at all. Do we maintain this army and navy to defend us against foreign States?

There is not a nation on the face of the earth There is not a nation on the face of the earth that dare attack any one of these free States if they were all separated and disunited from the Union. Not one. [Applause.] There is no such thing, then, as danger, and yet we are keeping an army and navy, for what? In order that slaves may not escape from the slave States to the free and that freed or emancipated negroes in the free States may not enter and introduce civil war into the slave States, and because that, if we provoke a foreign enemy, the Southern frontier is exposed to invasion from England, France, 100,000 votes in Virginia, which is about 18,000 war into the slave States, and because that, if we and Spain. That is the whole object of our army and navy. Have I not, then, a right to say ginia, while our Auditor's books show that we that I would rather have no army and no navy? have the rise of 200,000 votes in Virginia. We can always have a reserve sufficient for the occarring that I would rather not wring from the freemen of the United States money to sustain the army and navy, which in their very influences corrupt public virtue? Certainly, that is my duty as a patriot. What, then, are my limits? Simply 100,000 votes to beat the Opposition. these: The Constitution makes you and me a sovereign over the Territories of the United States for their good and for the welfare of the whole people. They are vacant, unoccupied, unimproved, and if they are left exposed to the cupidity of the slave master and the slave merchant before free men can reach there in numbers to cover the land with the civilization of the white man, the slaveholder would enter the Territories and colonize them with slaveholders and slaves. The smallest possible infusion of slavery into a State has been enough always to demoralize its whole people, and, strange to say, it turns them all into apologists and excusers and defendthe American people for forty years. It is that we do so love peace that we do so love harmony, Opposition which will tell in this election. that we do so love fraternity with our fellow-citislave State for forty years to come. That is what has done the mischief in Texas. Texas be was open to you and me. We left Texas to be taken by slaveholders and slaves, and for the Bell, and we learn that on yesterday a very large sake of peace we agreed to let them have five slave States there, while we thought to save one free State in Kansas. There is no virtue among the split in Virginia is a trick to induce them to liberty, and everything else, the great temple of liberty will be set on fire and consumed. I have no hope of the people of the United States unless as it grows and is inspired by sympathies with such people as you are. A man cannot be a freeman, and cannot appreciate the interest of the State, unless he owns his own land.

nature that if you bring the matter fairly home to any right-minded man, he would much rather say Douglas, and closes as follows: that you might make a slave of him rather than fix your manacles on any man within his protection and under his care. (That's the talk.) It is, therefore, a matter of the highest consequence whether slavery is voted up or voted down. Be people have to go and reside in a common Teritory whether the first that the control of the constitution as it has been expounded by the Dred Scott case. The cause of Douglas is losing ground every day, and the main reliance of many has been the foreign vote, both German and Irish, but the Richmonder Anzeiger, the German paper in Richmond has now hoisted the name of Breckinridge and Lane, and its editor, Mr. Hassel, addressed a large German meeting in the German language last Friday in Richmond, also James Lyons, the Breckinnidge elector. ployed him as a physician for his slaves, or had recognized him in that capacity whilst attending them, or ever assented to the rendition of the services as charged, but gave judgment for $6 upon the ground that services to that extent were indispensably necessary to the safety of the slaves, whose condition, when such service was rendered, did not admit of any delay for the purpose of obtaining the master's assent. If medical aid be rendered a slave in a case of necessity which does not admit of a previous application to the master, and to which he cannot be presumed to have assented be-cause ignorant of the facts, we have no doubt but that the person rendering the service would be entitled to compensation from the master. We concur in opinion with the County Judge, that the case before us is not one which authorizes a judgment for the full amount of the demand without evidence of assent of the owner of the slaves that appellant should render the services for which he has charged; but we think there was sufficient evidence to warrant the conclusion that the owner had assented to the rendition of the conclusion that the owner had assented to the rendition of the conclusion that the owner had assented to the rendition of the conclusion that the owner had assented to the rendition of the conclusion that the owner had assented to the rendition of the conclusion that the owner had assented to the rendition of the conclusion that the owner had assented to the rendition of the conclusion that the owner had assented to the rendition of the conclusion that the owner had assented to the rendition of the conclusion that the owner had assented to the rendition of the conclusion that the owner had assented to the rendition of the conclusion that the owner had assented to the rendition of the conclusion that the owner had assented to the rendition of the conclusion that the owner had assented to the rendition of the conclusion that the owner had assented to the rendition of the conclusion that the owner had assented to the rendition of the conclusion that the owner had assented to the rendition of the conclusion that the conclusion that the owner had assented to the rendition of the conclusion that the conclusion services, and for that reason are of opinion that a new trial should have been awarded to ap-

BLOOD RENOVATOR.

IT is precisely what its name indicates, for while pleasant to the taste, it is revivifying, exhilerating and strengthening to the vital powers. It also revivifies, reinstates and renews the blood in all its original purity, and thus restores and renders the system invulnerable to attacks of disease. It is the only preparation ever offered to the world in a popular form so as to be in the reach of all. As a sure preventive and cure of

Consumption, Bronchitis, Indigestion, Dyspep sia, Loss of Appetite, Faintness, Nervous Ir-ritability, Neuralgia, Palpitation of the Heart, Melancholy, Hypochrondria, Night Sweats, Langor, Giddiness, and all that class of cases so fearfully fatal, called female weaknesses and Irregularities, There is Nothing its Equal.

Also, Liver Derangements or Torpidity, and Liver Complaints, Diseases of the Kidneys, or any general derangement of the Urinary organs.

It will not only cure the debility following CHILLS and FEVER, but prevent all attacks arising from Miasmatic influences, and cure the diseases at once, if already attacked.

Travellers should have a bottle with them, as it will infallibly prevents any deleterious consequences following upon change of climate and water.

Asit prevent costiveness, strengthens the digestive organs, it should be in the hands of all persons of sedentary habits.

Ladies not accustomed to much out of door exercise should always use it.

These symptoms, if allowed to go on—which this medicine invariably removes—soon follows Loss of Power, Fatulty, and Epilettic Firs, in one of which the patient may expire. Who can say that these excesses are not frequently followed by those direful diseases—INSANITY AND CONSUMPTION? The records of the INSANE ASYLUMS, and the melancholy deaths by Consumptron, bear ample testimony to the truth of these assertions. In lunatic asylums, the most melancholy exhibition appears. The countenance is actually sodden and quite destitute. Neither Mirth or Grief ever visits it. Should a sound of the voice oceur, it is rarely articulate.
